

WILSON OPPOSES SPECIAL SESSION

May Eliminate That Part of Inaugural Work — Meeting Not Necessary.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—Pres't Wilson is considering breaking another precedent of more than a hundred years standing by not calling the customary special session of the senate immediately at the beginning of his new term.

Inauguration arrangements, already much upset by the fact that March 4 falls on a Sunday, may be further disarranged by the abandonment of the special session, which in a measure would change entirely the method and ceremonies of inaugurating the vice president.

The president's purpose as understood at the capital is to avoid a special session of the senate unless an extraordinary session of the

DON'T NEGLECT KIDNEYS

Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Prescription, Overcomes Kidney Trouble.

It is now conceded by physicians that the kidneys should have more attention as they control the other organs to a remarkable degree and do a tremendous amount of work in removing the poisons and waste matter from the system by filtering the blood.

The kidneys should receive some assistance when needed. Water, taken less exercise, drink less water and often eat more rich, heavy food, thereby forcing the kidneys to do more work than nature intended. Evidence of kidney trouble, such as lame back, annoying bladder troubles, smarting or burning, brick-dust or sediment in the urine, constipation, rheumatism, maybe weak or irregular heart action, warns you that your kidneys require help immediately to avoid more serious trouble.

An ideal herbal compound that has had most remarkable success as a kidney and bladder remedy is Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. There is nothing else like it. It is Dr. Kilmer's prescription used in private practice and it is sure to benefit you. Get a bottle from your druggist.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention The South Bend Daily News-Times. Adv.

Careless Use of Soap Spoils the Hair

Soap should be used very carefully. If you want to keep your hair looking its best, most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary multifaceted coconut oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get nulsified coconut oil at any pharmacy. It's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.

Beautiful, soft, glossy, healthy hair for those who use Parisian Sage. You can get a bottle of this inexpensive French hair dressing from druggists everywhere, with guarantee of satisfaction or money refunded.

New Seaplane for U. S. Defense

This 300 horse power, twin motored Gallaudet seaplane was built for the United States navy at New London, Conn. It is a speedy and powerful machine, capable of coping with the best seaplanes with which foreign navies are equipped. Other machines of the same type are rapidly being completed for Uncle Sam's sea-fighting service.

whole congress is necessary at the same time. The senate, called in special session as is the custom to confirm appointments of cabinet members and others would be powerless to legislate to any purpose alone but there would be nothing to prevent the body from remaining in session as long as it pleased and discussing any subject it chose. The understanding at the capitol Tuesday was that such a situation was to be avoided if possible.

Would Cut Half of Ceremony.

Abandonment of the special session would do away with the usual ceremony of inaugurating the vice president in the senate chamber. In the presence of both houses of congress, the diplomatic corps, the supreme court and other dignitaries. It would eliminate exactly one-half of the official ceremony of inauguration day. Vice Pres't Marshall pointed out Tuesday that under the constitution he could take the oath of office and file notice with the secretary of the senate any time before March 4, and then if he chose take another oath at the formal ceremonies, March 5.

Pres't Wilson has not decided so far as is known what he will do about taking an oath of office some time before the public ceremonies on Monday, March 5. Sec'y Lansing has advised him that it would be proper to take the oath Sunday, March 4, and then take it again at the public ceremony. There were some indications that the president might decide not to take any oath at all until Monday, March 5, that would leave an interval strictly speaking, during which the country would be without a president, but there is precedent for such action.

March 4, fell on Sunday in 1821, when Pres't Monroe entered his second term. On the advice of Chief Justice Marshall, Pres't Monroe took no oath until the following Monday. Pres't Taylor followed the precedent set by Monroe, when in 1849, he delayed taking the oath of office until March 5.

Wilson's Plans Unknown.

There is a precedent for taking the oath prior to March 5, if Pres't Wilson wishes to follow it. Pres't Hayes took it on March 3, a Saturday, immediately after the announcement of the conclusion of the memorable contest with Tilden. There was no announcement of Pres't Wilson's plans at the White house Tuesday but among administration leaders at the capitol, it seemed to be understood that unless Mr. Wilson changed his mind there would be no special session of the senate. Just what the president would do about taking the oath was unknown to White house officials.

Quite contrary to what has become a general opinion, no special session of the senate is required by the constitution for confirmation of cabinet appointments and in fact no confirmation of the cabinet is necessary if all the members remain, as appears now to be the plan.

If any new members should be present they would be given recess appointments and be presented for confirmation later.

Only a Custom.

The special session of the senate is in accordance only with custom of many years standing. While the president is required to take a new oath at the beginning of a new term, his cabinet officers, if they remain, require no new oath and no new confirmation for such a thing as a term is unknown to their offices. The cabinet as such, quite contrary to widespread opinion, is not recognized by the constitution. The members are appointed under the broad terms providing for public officers who serve during the pleasure of the president and the statutes creating the executive departments. Therefore they require no reappointment and no new confirmation.

The news that Pres't Wilson might abandon the special session session caused officialdom to gasp and it refreshed its memory and looked up the constitution and laws. It was found that the president was doing no more than breaking a precedent for which he has set a pace since coming into office.

When the situation as it affects his inauguration was referred to Vice Pres't Marshall, he explained the constitutional provisions.

Service of the Producer to the Consumer

More and more are the large corporations realizing that an efficient buyer is an asset to every honest business concern. It is also being generally recognized that the great majority of the buyers for the house hold are women. To get an intelligent class of customers, it is necessary to do something to inform these customers how best to buy for their households. This some of the large handlers of produce in the United States are doing in a most effective and helpful way.

In one large produce house in the middle west, some efficient campaigns are being carried on through its welfare and domestic economy department. "The aim of this department," said its head, the well-known writer and teacher of domestic economy and household arts, Jean Prescott Adams, "is to form a complete link in the chain that encircles producer, branch house, local distributor and consumer. We are trying to help to educate the housewives of the country in the methods of using to advantage inexpensive yet wholesome foods, how to choose good cuts of meat, how to get a good variety into their menus, and how to save themselves labor and unnecessary steps in the household routine.

"To accomplish this, we began by lecturing before the women's clubs. We invited them here to the plant, had our experts illustrate before them just what are best cuts of meat, the good but less expensive cuts, how to choose them, and when buying from the markets, what to ask for. Then we took them into our department of domestic economy and showed them how to use the cheaper cuts. We constantly are finding women everywhere throughout the country who are seeking this information. From all over the country I get calls to come and hold home-managers' conventions. In these places where we have no branch, we cooperate with the local dealers, and get them to supply the products with which to illustrate our talks. We give talks on home longer should it be said that America is the most wasteful nation in the world."

Perhaps one of the most helpful parts of the welfare work done by this house is that among its own women employees, especially the young girls, so many of whom come from the crowded districts where there is so little opportunity for home training. These young women are given instruction in very branch of home making, in the kitchens of the plant. Here all kinds of foods are prepared, menus are planned, home equipment is studied, the uses and properties of various foods and how to choose the best, are given attention. Then they are given a chance to see the preparation of the food in the great plant for which they work. A plan is under way, soon to be carried out, whereby the wives of the employes may be given this same instruction. The effect of such work is bound to be felt in homes everywhere. One of the most helpful signs of the times is the rapid spread of this kind of work among the large plants where meats and vegetables are prepared for distribution.

A technical library is being compiled by this company which will be of great help to farmers and schools. "We are realizing more and more that no distributor of foodstuffs on a large scale can afford to leave the farmer out of his consideration," said the expert who is compiling this library. "Our work will be to help the farmer in every way we can, to enable him to give to the consumer a better product through increased knowledge of the product."

"The clubs of the city, and the domestic economy departments in the public schools and colleges, are co-operating with us to extend this educational work to the different communities in which they are located. We have met with splendid response from the state universities, which everywhere are recognizing the general interest in home making, and are doing all they can to place this important unit of our social body on an efficient economic basis.
